He highlighted the growing crisis of transparency in the media landscape, noting that many digital platforms operate without accountability, ownership details, or editorial structures.

The speaker also pointed to rising challenges such as sensationalism, pressure for speed, and ethical inconsistencies, which gradually weaken trust. He warned that AI-generated misinformation - through altered videos, images, or voice cloning - poses new risks, especially in a socially sensitive region like Nagaland.

Dr. Jamir proposed several practical steps, including stronger transparency, ethical guidelines for event coverage, separation of editorial and commercial roles, and rigorous verification practices. He also called for a common Media Charter, joint
